Welcome to Norman Wilder Forest!

Owned and protected by Conserving Carolina, Norman Wilder Forest is a 185-acre nature preserve on the slopes of Little Warrior Mountain. It is composed of mature third growth mixed hardwoods. Open for wilderness exploration, this forest is home to a wide variety of wildflowers, birds, and mammals. In addition to abundant flora and fauna, Drip Falls and a 50-foot rock cliff offer scenic destinations for hikers on 1.3 miles of foot trails in the Forest.

The forest is named for World War II veteran and former Conserving Carolina board president Norman Wilder. The land was permanently protected by Conserving Carolina in 2001.

Care for Norman Wilder Forest! To ensure this special place remains accessible for all to enjoy, and stays forever natural and as wonderful as you see it today, please follow these rules for an experience that is respectful to others and cares for the land and trails.
